The College of William & Mary, VA, USA
(SIAM Award, MAA Award & COMAP Scholarship Award)

This year's contest ran over a single weekend Thursday, February 4 to Monday, February 8, 2021. During that time, teams of three students researched, modeled, and wrote a solution to an open-ended interdisciplinary modeling problem. The 2021 ICM was an online contest, where teams registered and obtained contest materials through COMAP's ICM Website.

ICM teams chose one of the following three problems: The D problem involved understanding musical influence of artists and how it may appear in the attributes of the music they create. Using the four data sets provided, students developed a model to measure influence of artists as well as similarity of music. They used these two measurements to understand musical evolution within a genre, musical influence between artists, and to identify revolutionaries. The E Problem asked teams to create a more equitable and sustainable food system. Students were also required to consider the timeline of implementation and the obstacles to change for a region. The F Problem considered the future of higher education by asking students to create a model to measure the health and sustainability of a national system of higher education. This problem required actionable policies to move a country to a healthier and more sustainable system based on the components they chose to include in their model and the country being considered. For all three problems, teams used pertinent data and grappled with how phenomena internal and external to the system needed to be considered and measured. The student teams produced creative and relevant solutions to these complex questions and built models to handle the tasks assigned in the problems. The problems also required data analysis, creative modeling, and scientific methodology, along with effective writing and visualization to communicate their teams' results in a 25-page report. A selection of the Outstanding solution papers will be featured in The UMAP Journal, along with commentaries from the problem authors and judges. This year's judges remarked that due to the multi-disciplinary nature of the problems, teams solved these problems using a variety of methods and tools. This allowed teams to showcase their strengths in many diverse areas including climate science, data science, education, food science, information science, music, network science, operations research, policy, statistics, and sustainability.

ICM is associated with COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling (MCM), which was held during the same weekend. ICM is designed to develop interdisciplinary problem-solving skills in science, technology, engineering, mathematics (STEM) and the humanities, as well as competence in data science and written communication. Over the years the ICM problem topics have included environmental science, biology, chemistry, political science, operations research, information science, public health, sports analytics, and network science. Each team is encouraged to include team members from a range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary interests in applied problem solving and modeling. To obtain additional information and a listing of all the team designations, please visit the ICM Website at: www.mcmcontest.com.

Major start-up funding for the ICM was provided by a grant from the National Science Foundation (through Project INTERMATH) and COMAP. Additional support is provided by The Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS). COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling and Interdisciplinary Contest in Modeling are unique among modeling competitions in that students work in teams to find a solution. Centering its educational philosophy on mathematical modeling, COMAP uses mathematical tools to explore real-world problems. It serves the educational community as well as the world of work by preparing students to become better informed—and prepared—citizens, consumers, workers, and community leaders.
