This year's contest ran over a single weekend from Thursday, February 17 to Monday, February 21, 2022. During that time, teams of three students researched, modeled, and wrote a solution to an open-ended real world modeling problem. The 2022 MCM was an online contest, where teams registered and obtained contest materials through COMAP's MCM Website.

The 2022 MCM problems represented a variety of challenging problems spanning the familiar to new. Each problem required teams to apply unique mathematical modeling skills to answer the questions posed. All three problems were created by the MCM Problem Committee, a unique blend of academicians and industry professionals with many years of mathematical modeling experience. Teams again had to be at the top of their game to excel.

For the A Problem, teams had to determine a method to approximate the ideal way for a cyclist to ride a fixed course in the least amount of time. The team's approach had to be adaptable so that given the characteristics of any specific rider, their algorithm would provide an estimate for that particular rider. The team was asked to do this for three different courses including the time trial courses used at the Tokyo Olympics and the 2021 World Championships. The team had to demonstrate how their method would be applied to two different riders that had different characteristics. The team also had to provide guidance on how the times might deviate when the rider tried to apply the team's results in various conditions and show the possible range of times when the rider's efforts do not closely match the original projections.

For the B problem, teams were required to develop a mathematical model to assist the natural resource officials in the U.S. states of Arizona, California, Wyoming, New Mexico, and Colorado who are currently negotiating to determine the best way to manage water usage and electricity production at the Glen Canyon and Hoover dams. Faced with recent precipitation shortages and persistent hotter temperatures causing problems with both supply (water availability) and demand (electricity requirements), teams needed to balance the water outflows from each dam necessary to meet both water and electricity needs for all demands and for the five listed states. In addition, teams were required to determine how long will it take before the demands are not met and how much additional water must be supplied over time to ensure that demands are met.

For the C problem, teams were presented with a forecasting and allocation optimization problem from a market trader perspective. Students were presented with five years of data on gold and bitcoin prices and were required to develop strategies on how to trade an initial $1000 stake using only the data provided and only up to the date of each trade. Complicating the analysis, the problem charged substantial commissions for each trade. Teams were required to justify why their approach was the best approach - a very challenging task for them.

A selection from the Outstanding solution papers will be featured in The UMAP Journal, along with commentaries from the problem authors and judges. All 15,105 of the competing teams are to be congratulated for their excellent work and enthusiasm for mathematical modeling and interdisciplinary problem solving.

Major funding for the MCM is provided by COMAP. Additional support is provided by the Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS), The Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics (SIAM), The Mathematical Association of America (MAA), The American Statistical Association (ASA) and The American Mathematical Society (AMS). COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling and Interdisciplinay Contest in Modeling are unique among modeling competitions in that they are the only international contests in which students work in teams to find a solution. Centering its educational philosophy on mathematical modeling, COMAP uses mathematical tools to explore real-world problems. It serves the educational community as well as the world of work by preparing students to become better informed—and prepared—citizens, consumers, and workers.
