University of California, Los Angeles, CA, USA
(Finalist - MAA Award)

This year's contest ran over a single weekend Thursday, February 17 to Monday, February 21, 2022. During that time, teams of three students researched, modeled, and wrote a solution to an open-ended interdisciplinary modeling problem. The 2022 ICM was an online contest, where teams registered and obtained contest materials through COMAP's ICM Website.

ICM teams chose one of the following three problems: The D problem required teams to create a metric to evaluate the maturity of a data and analytics system for a company. The three components of people, technology, and process needed to be incorporated into that metric for a shipping port, as well as evaluated its effectiveness in other industries. The E Problem asked teams to create a forest management plan that maximized the ability of a forest to sequester carbon, while also considering the options that may best serve the community that uses the forest. Overall, forests have many important functions, so creating a management plan must be tailored to the specific forest area. The F Problem considered the future impact of asteroid mining on global equity. Teams needed to define and provide a way to measure global equity and then see the impact that future explorations of mining might have on that measure. This required teams to provide potential versions of future asteroid mining and adjust those considerations to see how the mechanisms of an industry that does not currently exist could potentially change global equity. For all three problems, the student teams produced creative and relevant solutions to these complex questions and built models to handle the tasks assigned in the problems. The problems also required data analysis, creative modeling, and scientific methodology, along with effective writing and visualization to communicate their teams' results in a 25-page report.

A selection of the Outstanding solution papers will be featured in The UMAP Journal, along with commentaries from the problem authors and judges. This year's judges remarked that due to the multi-disciplinary nature of the problems, teams solved these problems using a variety of methods and tools. This allowed teams to showcase their strengths in many diverse areas including biology, climate science, data science, data governance, diversity, equity, and inclusion, environmental science, human resources, information science, operations research, policy, space, statistics, and sustainability.

ICM is associated with COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling (MCM), which was held during the same weekend. ICM is designed to develop interdisciplinary problem-solving skills in science, technology, engineering, mathematics (STEM) and the humanities, as well as competence in data science and written communication. Over the years the ICM problem topics have included environmental science, biology, chemistry, political science, operations research, information science, public health, sports analytics, and network science. Each team is encouraged to include team members from a range of disciplinary and interdisciplinary interests in applied problem solving and modeling. To obtain additional information and a listing of all the team designations, please visit the ICM Website at: www.mcmcontest.com.

Major start-up funding for the ICM was provided by a grant from the National Science Foundation (through Project INTERMATH) and COMAP. Additional support is provided by the Institute for Operations Research and the Management Sciences (INFORMS), The Society for Industrial and Applied Mathematics (SIAM), The Mathematical Association of America (MAA) and The American Mathematical Society (AMS). COMAP's Mathematical Contest in Modeling and Interdisciplinary Contest in Modeling are unique among modeling competitions in that students work in teams to find a solution. Centering its educational philosophy on mathematical modeling, COMAP uses mathematical tools to explore real-world problems. It serves the educational community as well as the world of work by preparing students to become better informed—and prepared—citizens, consumers, workers, and community leaders.
